

What is a Child Arrangements Order?

It's a plan made by a judge to keep you safe and happy.
It says:

Where you live
Who you see
How you keep in touch (visits, calls, video chats)
It usually lasts until you're 18.

Why is it important?

It helps the adults who care for you share responsibility and make everyday choices like meals and bedtime.

Big changes (like moving away) need everyone to agree or the court.

People like grandparents, family members, or carers who look after you can ask.

It's always about what's best for you

Child Arrangement Orders

1

Sometimes, before the court makes a decision about where you live or who you see, they ask the Local Authority (the people who help keep children safe) to write a report. This report helps the court understand what would be best for you and make sure the arrangements will keep you happy and safe.

Sometimes, different teams help the court understand what's best for you.

The Kinship Team may be involved – They look at families who care for children, like grandparents or other relatives.

The Safeguarding Team may be involved– They make sure children are safe and protected.

If the Local Authority (the people who help keep children safe) aren't involved, another group called CAFCASS might help. They are independent and give advice to the court about what's best for you.

3

The report is all about you and what you need. It checks things like:

- Are you safe and protected?
- Are you feeling happy and cared for?
- How are your relationships with your family and other important people?

Its important everyone works together and goes through with the report as the report helps the court decide if the plans will give you a home that is:

- Safe
- Stable (so you feel secure)
- Supportive (so you feel loved and looked after)

4

During the process, the people helping the court might:

- Talk to you and your family in interviews
- Visit the home to see where you potentially may live to make sure its all safe
- Ask questions to check how the grown-ups can look after you

All of this is done to make sure you are safe, happy, and well cared for.
